Talkin' about... Foot Massage

Hey there! Welcome to my new column for Talk da Talk's Club News where I get to teach you a little English and a little about my life here in China.

If you've lived here for as long as I have, you know that this can be a stressful place to live. And if you know me, I'm always lookin' for ways to relieve stress after a day on the TV Set. One way I like to relax is to get a foot massage. Just look down any street in China and you're bound to find a Chinese massage shop, and I'd have to say the best masseuses in the world work in them. These guys know about your chi energy, your pressure points, and they can tell what's wrong with your body just by feeling the knots in your muscles. And to top it off, most of them are blind.

Recently, my friend Jon from Boston came to out to study Chinese. Since it was his first time here, I wanted to take him out to get a foot massage. You know, like, give him the real Chinese experience, so I took him to my favorite blind masseuse.

Jon had never had a foot massage before, so he kept on asking me all these questions: "Does it hurt?" "What happens if it tickles?" "What if I get excited when the blind guy starts to feel up my feet?"

To calm him down I started telling him about the benefits of foot massage--like, how with foot massage, or reflexology, each spot on your foot is linked to a corresponding area on your body. If you feel a sharp, stinging pain on a specific part of your foot, it means that there's something wrong with the corresponding part of your body. By getting a foot massage, it helps to fix those "bad parts".

By the time I'd finished with Foot Massage 101, he was feeling better, and we reached the massage shop.

We walked inside, I introduced Jon to the owner, and I asked them to give Jon the best masseuse they had. Then, we were shown to our own private room where they sat us down in these huge lazy-boy armchairs, gave us a remote control for the TV, and some warm tea. Man, was it comfy!

Then, they brought in buckets of hot herbal water. I told Jon it was to soften your feet before the massage, and we both dipped our feet in. Ooo, feels good! Finally, we were both pretty relaxed!

After a while, two blind masseuses came into the room. They sat down in front of us and grabbed our feet. Jon looked nervously at me, and I told him everything was OK and to just relax. They started kneading, pressing, pushing and pulling our feet. Their hands moved like they were playing instruments. I looked over at Jon and he was lookin' like he was in pain. Then all of a sudden I screamed out, "OWWW!"

My masseuse then asked me, "Mr. Wu, you haven't been getting good sleep, have you?" I answered, "Yeah, I'm in the middle of filming, so I'm pretty exhausted. Can you fix me up?" Next he started working on the "poor sleep" part of my foot. It hurt, but I knew it was good for me.

Jon was pretty amazed, and he was eager to hear words of wisdom from his masseuse as well. Trying his best with his new language skills, he asked, "我那里需要进步?"

His masseuse replied with a grin, "你的中文!!!"

Crew of the Month: Guy 柯进强

Hi everyone, my name is Guy Klages, and I've taught English for over 10 years. When people ask me where I'm from, I like to tell them "I am from my mother", but really, I'm from California.

After graduating in Computer Science & Economics, I worked as a software engineer for a few years, while teaching English part-time. I found that I enjoyed teaching students English and helping them understand this "universal" language more than writing computer code in "machine" language, so I started teaching full-time.

Having an interest in learning many languages myself, I have lived all over Asia (Tokyo, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Ho Chi Minh City, Singapore, Kuala Lumpur and Seoul) and studied some of each language. Since I also taught English to students in those countries, I have heard the common English mistakes and learned fun, easy-to-remember ways of teaching. And I look forward to opening your world with English and self-confidence!

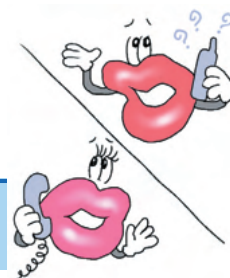

大家好,我叫柯进强。我教授英语已经10多年了。当人们问我从什么地方来时,我喜欢告诉他们“我自我妈妈”,其实,我来自加州。

我从计算机科学和经济专业毕业后,做了很多年的计算机软件工程师,同时兼职教授英语。同机械地编程相比,我发现自己更热爱教授学生英语,帮助学生去理解这门“全球通用”的语言,所以开始全职地从事英语教学。

我热爱语言学习,我走遍了全亚洲(东京、台湾、香港、曼谷、胡志明市、新加坡、吉隆坡和汉城),学习了各门语言。因为我在这些国家也教授学生英语,我遇到过许多常见的英语错误,找到了有趣易记的方法去教学,在此,我期待机会去开拓你的英语世界、帮你提高学习的自信。

International Trips

In Talk da Talk's International Trips, we teach more than English; we instill independence and self-reliance as we travel to faraway foreign cities, as well as provide you with semi-self-serviced travel packages. We give you the total freedom that you can't get from other travel agencies.

What is "semi-self-serviced"? In the overseas trip, we don't have a local guide to lead us, but we do have hospitable and knowledgeable staff, crew and logistical people. They are responsible for making all travel arrangements to fill your trip with fresh experiences, new things, fun and return you safely. Currently, there are three International Trips per year, but more will be added in the future.
